EDITORIAL COMMENT

1918

A New Year again is opening, but this time with our country at war and all our activities influenced, more or less, by the titanic world struggle for democracy and liberty. To help win the war is the first duty of each inhabitant of this great United States, and many are the ways open for us to help.

Libraries have problems to solve quite different from any heretofore presented. Not only the books-for-soldiers campaign must be pushed, but the demands upon the resources of the reference and business departments must be met. Books and especially files of periodicals bearing upon food, raw materials, manufactures, agriculture, transportation, finance, statistics of almost every variety, are needed. The library is where these should be instantly available.

Let The Boston Book Company be of service to you in this its special field. We will do our best to help you and this shall be our New Year's message to our readers. Let us all consecrate our energies each in his own way to achieve at the earliest possible moment the victory we pray for.

OUR FRONTISPIECE

Dr. Frank Pierce Hill, chief librarian of the Brooklyn Public Library, well deserves a high place in our series of portraits of librarians. Since 1881 he has been at the head of various libraries, coming to each in turn as executive and organizer; and the development of the Brooklyn public library system under his expert and energetic guidance since 1901 has been one of the notable successes in the library field. In the American Library Association he has been a foremost figure these many years—secretary 1891–95, president, 1906. As chairman of the A. L. A. war finance committee in the recent campaign, he carried the drive for a million-dollar fund to the unexpected success of $1,600,000. We are glad to have his permission to publish this excellent recent photograph as the frontispiece to Vol. 10 of the Bulletin of Bibliography.

INDEX TO LIBRARY REFERENCE LISTS

In this issue is the 1917 annual index to Reference Lists published by libraries and usually available for the asking (be sure to enclose stamp with request). Librarians have found this feature of the Bulletin of Bibliography a most useful one for the past fifteen years.

LIBRARY WAR WORK

We have again given over our Department of Applied Library Economy to the subject of how libraries can help to win the war. Miss Doren's account of the wonderfully efficient system of War Hospital library service inaugurated and carried on at the Dayton Public Library will be most timely as so many communities are anxious to help.

Our account of the present library achievement at Camp Devens, Mass., will show how success under difficulties is being rapidly won by Mr. Lowe and his associates.

MAGAZINE NOTES

Sunset. Last summer this periodical, in a search for the unusual and peculiar, issued several numbers, each paged by itself and with no volume number anywhere to be found. We thought the final stage in magazine degeneracy had come, but the publishers write us it was an oversight and say it will not happen again.

Special Libraries has, under its new editor, two newsy departments, "In the field" and "Useful things in print." But please, Mr. Editor, have the proofs read more carefully, and also avoid jarring your readers with such camouflages for their friends' names as Roumane McManus.

National Magazine, Boston, has hurriedly made the change which is so contagious among periodicals recently. It appears for December as a folio size affair, but without any explanation of the change, or even allusion to it, in its pages. Evidently the Chapple family who edit, publish, and generally and severally "get it out" have not yet caught their breath. So we must say for them that while vol. 47, nos. 1–2, for October-November, 1917, was a double number and the last of the old octavo size, December is innocently called vol. 47, new series, no. 1. If not too late, librarians will please bind October-November at the end of vol. 46, and letter that volume as vol. 46. It will be so indexed in the Magazine Subject Index, and included by the publisher in the index he prints for volume 46, thus absorbing the October-November number and leaving the new size free to be called volume 47, without any mix-up in future.

Outing has moved into "a new home" — such is the interesting way the change from octavo to quarto, made with October, 1917, vol. 71, no. 1, is announced. "As a man builds his house to suit changing conditions and tastes, so the editor builds his magazine. When Outing was started a generation ago, croquet was the popular pastime, tennis was recognized as somewhat too vigorous for octogenarians, but not up to the level of real manly exercise. Golf was still an alien, the automobile was unknown. . . . The high-wheel bicycle was just approaching the zenith of its fame, and a full crop of whiskers was not incompatible with athletic prowess." The camera has wrought a change in outdoor living, and "Outing has reflected this change . . . but for some time we have felt the hampering effect of form and space." A rather pleasant statement of the causes for the change, and the new numbers are certainly most attractive.

The Booklist is the new and more compact title of The A. L. A. Booklist. The change was made with vol. 14, no. 1, and the size expanded to octavo as the title grew smaller. Some compensation!

World's Work with vol. 35, no. 1, November, 1917, finds itself in the large size so popular. Next!

Contemporary Review, December, 1916, was censored by the British Government and so lacks the first two articles, "A Council of the Churches," by Rev. J. Scott Lidgett, and "The Light that Failed in the Near East," by Dr. E. J. Dillon. These cover pages 681–704, and the contents printed by the publisher also omits reference to the articles. They are not indexed in Reader's Guide.

Green's Fruit Grower (Rochester, N. Y.) will combine with The American Fruit Grower, Charlottesville, Va., and The Fruit Grower, St. Joseph, Mo., as Green's American Fruit Grower, publication office in Chicago. We approve of this reduction in superfluous fruit.

Nation for January 4, 1917, has on its cover "Two Sections." The second section was a title-page and index of vol. 103, July to December, 1916, but this index instead of bearing the date "Section II, January 4, 1917," was entitled "Section II, December 28, 1916." December 28, 1916, had no notice of a second section, nor was any issued with it. Thus do they try to make life a burden to all librarians.

Baseball Magazine changed to the new size with February, 1917, and also started a new pagination which was continued through October, 1917. Thus vol. 18, no. 4, to vol. 19, no. 6, are paged continuously. But vol. 20, no. 1, November, 1917, starts with page 129, so that we may wonder what became of 1–128. As no index is issued to this periodical, why worry?

American Golfer. Here is a bright and shining idea. This magazine publishes an index covering the calendar year, although its volumes run from November to April, and May to October. Isn't that cute! Well, now it has paged up in one sequence vol. 17, no. 1, to vol. 18, no. 3, November, 1916, to July, 1917, and started a brand new pagination with August, vol. 18, no. 4.

Everybody's Magazine for November, 1917, comes in quarto form, the new "flat" size, so-called. It is said by the publisher to be "new in form, size, style — big pages and a lot more of them . . . and with all the newness, the same Everybody's." Such is the bright picture painted by the publisher. We are adding for the further information of libraries, vol. 37, July to October, nos. 1–4, are octavo; nos. 5–6, November, December, 1917, are quarto. Bind November, December with vol. 38. A title and index covering July to October will be issued, and November and December will be included in the index of vol. 38.

NEW BOOKS BY LIBRARIANS

AN APPRENTICE COURSE FOR SMALL LIBRARIES by the Faculty of the Library School of the University of Wisconsin.

This book is the result of a series of articles which have appeared in the Wisconsin Library Bulletin. These are now gathered together, revised to date, and made available in a useful form. The chapters cover: Selecting an apprentice; Classification and shelving; Library handwriting; Mechanical processes; Care of periodicals; Typewriting; Use of the Catalog; Loan work; Library Economy; Care of books; Reference work; Suggestions for the apprentice's personal reading.

Chicago. American Library Association. 64 pp. 1917.

BUCK, SOLON J. Illinois in 1818.

This book is issued by the Commission having in charge the celebration of the centennial of the admission of the State of Illinois into the Union. It is the preliminary volume of a series, and covers, as its title indicates, the conditions in Illinois at the time of her admission to the Union. The Indians and fur trade had a large place in those early days; and the public lands system of settlement was of interest. This volume gives the social, economic, and intellectual conditions obtaining in the pioneer days, and has many illustrations and extracts from contemporary newspapers and books of travel.

The Illinois Centennial Commission. Springfield, Ill. 1917. 362 pp.

HARRISON, JOSEPH LE ROY. Camp-fire verse, chosen by Williams Haynes and Joseph LeRoy Harrison, with an introduction by Stewart Edward White.

This is a collection of over one hundred poems covering camping and hunting verse. The selections are made carefully and a very representative anthology is the result, more than ninety authors being represented. The poems cover big-game hunting, upland shooting, water fowling, canoeing, camping, exploring; Maine, the North Country, the Adirondacks, Canada and the Northwest, the Plains and the Rockies, the desert, and the sunny Southland. There is an index of titles and of first lines; and the contents, contrary to the usual custom of order of pages, is arranged alphabetically by authors.

New York. Duffield & Co. 1917. 244 pp. $1.25.

KOCH, THEODORE W. A book of Carnegie libraries.

This long expected book has now appeared and is very welcome as we have all too few books giving plans of modern library buildings. This volume gives many such, with the necessary descriptive comments as to how the different communities secured their buildings, and how the people are using them. There are many pictures showing interiors as well as the exteriors of buildings treated. The volume does not cover any buildings later than 1907. The opening chapter is a character sketch of Mr. Carnegie. Chapter II covers the story of Mr. Carnegie's method of giving and his benefactions. There is an index to text and an index to plates.

White Plains. H. W. Wilson Co. 226 pp. $3.50.

LAMB, GEORGE H., editor. The unwritten history of Braddock's Field (Pennsylvania).

This sumptuous volume seems a fitting souvenir of the Golden Jubilee of Braddock, the Silver Jubilee of Rankin, and the one hundred and seventy-fifth anniversary of the first white settlement west of the Alleghenies. It has been prepared under the editorship of Mr. Lamb, librarian of the Carnegie library of Braddock, Pa., which is the original Carnegie library in America. The book will be a permanent addition to the history of all the region, and gives very fully and with many portraits and other illustrations, the development of the great industries which have centered at Braddock.

Geo. H. Lamb, Braddock, Pa. 1917. 336 pp. $2.50.

DEPARTMENT OF APPLIED LIBRARY ECONOMY

I. THE WAR HOSPITALS' LIBRARY SERVICE, AT DAYTON, OHIO
II. THE ORGANIZATION OF THE CAMP DEVENS (MASS.) A. L. A. LIBRARY

I. DAYTON LIBRARY WAR WORK

By Electra C. Doren, Librarian

From the first week of the war, the Dayton Public Library, like all other libraries in the country, has sought to find its place in war work. The Library Board early gave its sanction for allowing time of the Library staff to be applied in this manner, whether in war gardening, Red Cross class work, or other more direct service such as clerical work and filing for the Red Cross office, or instruction to volunteers in booklet making, etc., or in securing subscriptions to the A. L. A. War Library Fund. In addition, three sub-branches of the Library have been established at local camps and aviation fields and full citizen privileges for books have been extended to the officers and men, while small libraries of fifty volumes and several hundred magazines have been given to squadrons to carry with them on the train when they left for Southern cantonments. Clerical work of preparing cards for hundreds of volumes forwarded to various camps has also been done.

However, probably the most distinctive war work which the Library has undertaken was the organization last July, for the local branch of the League for Woman's Service, of the War Hospitals' Library Service.

The making up of light-weight booklets from old magazines, for convalescent soldiers, is an adaptation of the scrap-book idea but requires some care in selection and handling of material as well as the application of a simple technique in the make-up of the booklets. This was carefully worked out in detail at our Library, the difficulties which the inexperienced volunteer would encounter being held in mind. A series of classes in book-making, selection and classification of magazine material, designing and mounting picture charts were held for volunteer workers and over two hundred enrolled. Sample kits with typewritten instructions were made to meet the demand from many out-of-town inquirers.

The distinguishing feature of the Dayton work is the simple form of the booklet cover (since copied and manufactured by a commercial house), combining with it the application of a color scheme of classification which is based upon the Dewey decimal system. The service object in view is to supply war hospitals with large quantities of light-weight booklets, picture charts, and scrap-books, so classified by color and subject-heading that hospital attendants may speedily select material suitable to the varied requirements of the patients and may use the same material repeatedly. Booklets are of various weights, from a single-page picture to a fifty-page magazine. They comprise all classes of reading matter. They are classified by color to facilitate rapid selection of main classes, and further described by some characterizing phrase stamped on the cover so that filing and consultation may easily be accomplished. The covers are of khaki paper, re-enforced at the back with colored cloth, perforated for tying in the reading matter.

Classification of reading matter by color scheme is as follows:

000	Black:	General, or unclassified non-fiction
100 and 200	Grays:	Philosophy and religion
300 and 900	Tans, browns, and yellow:	Sociology, history, biography, and travel
500 and 600	Greens:
	(light green)	Science
	(dark green)	Applied sciences or useful arts
700	Blues:	Fine arts
800	Reds:	Literature
	(bright red)	Fiction
	(dark red)	Poetry, drama, and essays, wit and humor

In applying the above color classification, only the color named for the classes named should be used. In case it is desired to use only two classes, all non-fiction is put in black. If more than two classes are used, add as desired, holding strictly to the designated colors and leaving unclassified matter in black. It is evident that variation from this standard color scheme as shown on the color charts (included in all sample kits) would lead to confusion and defeat the purposes of classification when booklets bound in differing schemes are sent to the hospitals.

The great volume and variety of magazine material received and the many processes necessary to reduce it to usefulness as hospital reading may best be comprehended by a glance at the organization scheme of workrooms which experience has proved necessary. The organization of work is as follows:

Office: Telephone, correspondence, scheduling, bulletin, and publicity.
Supplies: Book covers, cloth, paste, tools, etc.
Shipping and packing room.
Receiving magazines, sorting and rejecting the undesirable.
Baling waste for sale.
Opening magazines and distributing to workers.
Readers' Room: Selection, assembly, and classification of magazine articles for covering.
Book-making: Assembling table, pasting table, perforating and tying.
Picture charts: Clipping, mounting.

The typewritten codes for each process have been based upon experience and, while detailed, are simple and necessary to avoid confusion.

After all the organizing and instruction is complete, two paramount needs assert themselves: namely, a permanent paid worker, to make connections when volunteers fail and to continue the supervision, inspection, and the instruction necessary to standardize the work; and also a central station, located preferably with the Red Cross, where the work may be carried on continuously.

The local chairman of the National League for Woman's Service in Dayton, Mrs. C. I. Williams, conceived the idea of the light-weight booklet from the hospital experience of a friend who came up through a long and tedious convalescence. She has been indefatigable in her efforts to supply the volunteer workers with materials and to furnish the proper conditions for producing the best results. It has been a pleasure to us to bring to bear upon her problem whatever aid this Library could offer in working out of the technical details involved. The initial equipment, selection of methods and materials, the organization and standardization of the work, we have done and have also allowed the time of a number of skilled Library assistants as leaders and instructors for the first three or four months. It is obvious that when it comes to sending such matter overseas and the difficulty and limitations in transportation are considered, wise selection for the reader, attractive and practical make-up, and repetition of use are important desiderata which good library economy can best secure.

There is now a permanent secretary in charge of the Dayton work and three very efficient working committees of volunteers, with a large enrollment of clubs and schools who give their time. Our own Library makes up and supplies free of charge the sample kits for libraries and the League supplies to all others at a nominal rental charge to cover cost of material, repairs, postage, etc. Several hundred loans have thus been made to various parts of the country where schools, clubs, and libraries are organizing for war hospital work. The Red Cross and American Library Association are looked to as the only channels through which transportation overseas may be assured. Anyone interested in this work may address Miss Helen Pearson, Executive Secretary, War Hospitals' Library Service, Red Cross Bldg., Dayton, Ohio.

II. HOW ONE OF THE WAR CAMP LIBRARIES HAS BEEN ORGANIZED

The A. L. A. Library, Camp Devens, Mass.

In April the Free Public Library Commission of Massachusetts determined that the way to meet the problem of a Camp Library would be to have a central building, using the Y.M.C.A. buildings and the barracks as deposit or branch stations. With this in view an appeal was sent to all the libraries of the state, asking their co-operation in collecting books to be forwarded to the Boston Public Library as a distributing center. Meanwhile traveling libraries were sent from the Commission office to all temporary camps through the Y. M. C. A. When Camp Devens was completed, an effort was made immediately to obtain a temporary building, awaiting the plans of the American Library Association. Three or four thousand volumes were sent from the Boston Public Library to the then unfinished headquarters building of the Y. M. C. A. From there the books were distributed to the Y. M. C. A. buildings already open. On October 19th, a second shipment of three to four thousand volumes was sent to the Camp, and from them some deposits made. The compelling demand for buildings rendered it almost impossible to get any sort of a building to house the books, the Y. M. C. A. shipping room being overcrowded. Finally through the courtesy of the Division Post Exchange Officer, a supply shed was granted for this use. The wind and the rain made certain changes necessary in the building, and a search was made for more habitable quarters. Suddenly the books were ordered taken from the building, and twenty-four hours given as the time limit for moving. The Construction Quartermaster granted the use of a former mess hall of the 38th Company Motor Truck Division. Here were three large mess tables capable of accommodating one hundred and fifty men, and on these the books were piled, sorted, plated, and made ready for distribution. Temporary shelving was put in the building to receive the books when done.

When the American Library Association took up the work as a national movement, the Commission volunteered to supervise the work at Camp Devens, and Mr. John A. Lowe, their agent, was granted a leave to undertake the service. On the third of November, Mr. Lowe, Mr. A. C. Tilton of Lynn, and Mr. H. H. Eddy of Fall River took up living quarters in the kitchen and pantry of the mess hall, and have been in the Camp ever since. Volunteer helpers from neighboring libraries, from the Commission office, and from the Women's City Club of Boston assisted in the preparation of the books.

Following the plans of Mr. Edward L. Tilton of New York, the Ley Company erected the building of the American Library Association on the designated location near the post-office. The site is central and is in the midst of the barracks of the Depot Brigade, the Engineer Corps, and the 301st, 302d, 303d, and 304th Infantry. The position is commanding, and the building itself may be seen for half a mile on the main road entering the Camp. The building was completed and the books moved the second week in December. Temporary shelving had to be used at first because, owing to congested transportation, no furniture arrived. This, however, was installed December 30th.

During all the process of moving and settling, the building has been in constant use, although no advertising has been done to call the building to the attention of the Camp.

One evening, when the temperature was two above zero, one hundred men and twenty-five officers came to the library for reading or the selection of books between 6.30 and 9.30 o'clock. The men appreciate apparently the fact that the library is offering a place where serious reading and study may be conducted. The barracks are so constructed that in the four large rooms there is no place for privacy or quiet; a phonograph and a piano, a basket-ball game and a pool game may be going on all at once. Officers who give lectures have found it very difficult to secure a quiet place, and it is hoped that during the morning hours, when the library is not busy, they may come to the library to give their lectures to the non-commissioned officers or to small groups of men.

The library is very attractive, the books being placed on shelves with an alcove arrangement, and plenty of Windsor chairs, which are very rare in Camp, benches and folding chairs being generally used. When the librarian went to trace the furniture at the Quartermaster's storehouse, he was met by a lieutenant who said, "What do you mean, chairs? Honest-to-God four-legged-chairs? I'd go two miles to sit in one of 'em!"

Owing to the terribly cold temperature, a wall board ceiling is to be installed and additional furnaces. An addition is to be put on immediately at the rear of the building forty feet square, which will contain a large fireplace and inglenook. The men smoke in the building, and everything is done to make it as attractive and club-like as possible.

That the library is appreciated may be suggested by the fact that two or three officers come daily to make a careful study of the strategic importance of movements of the armies abroad. One officer in the Engineer Department called for books in German that he might study German script. He reads German rapidly but must be able to read German postal-cards which are almost universally written in German script.

The quality of books chosen would be indicated by the following record picked up at random during part of the day's circulation:

Engineering field manual.
German grammars.
Experimental chemistry.
Book of submarines.
Carlyle's "Sartor resartus."
Goethe's "Poems."
James' "Memories and portraits."
Kipling's "Collected verse."
Masefield's "Good Friday and other poems."
Repplier's "A book of famous verse."
Shakespeare's works.
Van Dyke's "Fisherman's luck."
Muir's "Travels in Alaska."
Sir Walter Scott's "Journal."
And a number of war books.

The fiction drawn at the same time was written by Beach, Churchill, Doyle, Gray, Lincoln, Vance, and Wells.

A most unpromising specimen surprised the librarian by asking for Spencer's "First principles" which was not on the shelves, and following this request with one for Berson's "Philosophy."

The demand for military books, such as the Morss "Manual" and the "Plattsburg manual" has been very great.

One morning before the librarian was fairly dressed — 6.45, preparing for company mess — a man came running breathlessly to the library to tell him he had been chosen for the officer's school, as a result of his study of these books. The men from the officer's school are planning to spend afternoons at the library where two alcoves are to be reserved for them for study purposes.

Several officer-instructors of the newly established non-commission training school, representing five hundred men, have asked for illustrative material, pictures, maps, and diagrams to be used in class and study rooms. The subjects are trench construction and use in warfare; obstacles; gas, manufacture and methods of use in attacks; gas masks, construction and use; machine guns; camouflage; grenades and grenade field construction; signaling and means of communication.

The formal opening of the library awaits the completion of the building, but the response already indicated by the service being given under temporary conditions shows the crying need for books and promises a most active and enthusiastic work for the librarian and his staff.
